

OCTOBER 2016

Lisa Scholl, MMC
Deputy City Recorder
St. Helens, Oregon

Lisa Scholl is an employee who exemplifies all that an employer could want in an employee. She is hard working, organized, kind, caring, intelligent, and so many more qualities. To anyone witnessing her grace at work, you are immediately drawn to her quiet charisma. In 2013, Lisa received the City's Employee of the Year Award. It was a well-deserved award for such an excellent employee.

If her excellent effort at work wasn't enough, Lisa is engaged in several activities outside her employment that have benefited our community. Lisa organized an American Cancer Society Relay for Life team called the City Slickers. This year, her team raised more than $3,000 to go toward programs of the local American Cancer Society and research. She single-handedly organized everything involved with raising money, recruiting volunteers, and getting participants for fundraisers throughout the year and for the annual 24-hour Relay for Life event. She even stayed at the event for over 24-hours to make sure that the team was supported. Her participation in the Relay for Life organization has impressed the leaders of the organization and they have invited her to participate on the committee, which she graciously accepted.

In addition to her efforts that benefit the American Cancer Society, Lisa is involved in her daughters' school and was recently elected to the school's board. Their school is dependent on families participating in fundraisers and whenever there is an opportunity to raise funds, Lisa jumps right in and helps out as much as she can. She even prepares and serves lunch several times a year for the students, preparing large batches of pizza and pasta for the kids!

Lisa's youngest daughter is a member of American Heritage Girls, which is a program whose mission is "Building women of integrity through service to God, family, community and country." Lisa is such a shining example of this to the girls in the program. She is a faith-filled, family-oriented, community-minded, America-loving woman who any program would love to have as an example to young girls. Not only is she a mentor to these young girls but she is also a mother that her daughters look up to.

Lisa has also been involved with her church volunteering to come in an hour early before the service to prepare coffee and pastries. And she frequently volunteers in Sunday school for small children, taking care of babies and toddlers while their parents are worshiping and hearing the day's sermon.

Lisa also selflessly prepares meals for people when they are in need due to a surgery or birth of a baby or some other family situation.
